Paris, (1869)

These beautifully finished drawings illustrate the various styles of dress common in Europe from the fourth to the nineteenth century. The distinguishing characteristics of the costumes of each period are carefully delineated, and the minutiæ of detail in dress and ornament, marking the distinctive features of the various grades of society, duly noted and expressed. The interest of the work is considerably increased by the introduction of Portraits of Sovereigns, Statesmen, Warriors, and other eminent personages in the costumes of their own times. Many of the drawings are of a grotesque and amusing character, depicting curious and cumbersome garbs, and highly entertaining incidents. There are also added several gorgeously coloured Oriental costumes. The whole collection forms a choice and elegant series of illustrations elaborately executed and exquisitely coloured.

These woodcuts are beautifully executed, and present all the spirit of the originals. The Descriptions are given in Italian and French,

This is one of the most beautiful collections of Costumes ever published. The plates are most artistically executed and coloured, and the volume forms a charming addition to the drawing-room table, as well as being an authentic record of the Costume and Fashion for the last Seven Centuries.

D'Urfey's Tory Songs did much to strengthen the Royal cause, and his Protestant lays helped to bring Popery into disrepute. "I myself remember (says Addison in the 'Guardian') King Charles leaning on Tom D'Urfey's shoulder more than once, and humming a song over with him. It is certain that monarch was not a little supported by "Joy to great Cæsar," which gave the Whigs such a blow as they were not able to recover that whole reign. My friend afterwards attacked Popery with the same success, having exposed Bellarmine and Porto-Carrero more than once, in short satirical compositions which have been in every body's mouth."

"This piece," says Warton, "professes to treat of the Creation, the Redemption, the day of Judgement, the Joys of Heaven, and the Torments of Hell: but the whole is a religious Allegory, and under the ideas of Chivalry the fundamental articles of Christian belief are represented. It has the air of a system of divinity written by a Troubadour."

Although various elaborate works on the Art of Ornamentation have been published during the last few years, the advertisers have reason to believe that Racinet's Polychromatic Ornament will be found superior to them all in many important respects, the majority of them being either purely elementary or confined to one particular branch of the subject. The present work is not only sold at a very moderate price, but it is also so comprehensive that it forms in itself a complete library of the subject, the plates giving generally complete designs instead of mere fragments, as in most other works; they are executed, too, with a degree of finish never before attained.

"Nothing can exceed the beauty and accuracy of the coloured figures. They are drawn life-size—an advantage which every young amateur will recognize who has vainly puzzled over drawings in which a celandine is as big as a poppy: they are enriched with delicate delineations of fruit, petal, anther, and any organ which happens to be remarkable in its form; and not a few plates are altogether new. . . . A clear, bold, distinctive type enables the reader to take in at a glance the arrangement and divisions of every page. And Mrs. Lankester has added to the technical description by the editor, an extremely interesting popular sketch, which follows in smaller type. The English, French, and German popular names are given. Medical properties, superstitions, and fancies, and poetic tributes and allusions follow."—Guardian.

HENRY SOTHERAN AND CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR

CLUBS, LIBRARIES, AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

The Advertisers, being in the constant habit of supplying Books to PUBLIC LIBRARIES and GOVERNMENT INSTITUTIONS Abroad, for which they have unusual facilities in the extent of their Stock and general experience, respectfully intimate that all orders will be executed with intelligence, care, and promptitude, and that any discretionary powers entrusted to them will be exercised with judgment and discretion. In all cases it is essential for them to have references or a remittance in advance.

DEPARTMENTS.

OLD AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS. The stock is now, as it has been for many years, unapproachable in extent and variety, numbering upwards of 500,000 volumes.

STANDARD BOOKS AND NEW PUBLICATIONS. All the Standard Works, particularly those necessary for an English library, together with the New Books issued by the leading Publishers, are constantly kept in stock.

BOOKS FOR PRIZES AND FOR PRESENTATION. A special Department is appropriated to Books suitable for Prizes and for Presentation, of which a large assortment is always kept on hand, appropriately bound in the best styles, and so various in price as to suit all customers. CATALOGUES ON APPLICATION.

ORDERS FOR AMERICA, THE COLONIES, & FOREIGN COUNTRIES, executed with intelligence, care and promptitude; any discretionary powers entrusted to the Advertisers will be exercised with judgment and discretion in the interest of their clients.

REMAINDERS OF GOOD BOOKS AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES. From various causes many valuable works are often sold to the Advertisers not long after publication; these are invariably offered to the Public at the lowest possible price.

BOOKBINDING EXECUTED. To this department the Advertisers direct special attention, as they enjoy unwonted facilities for executing the highest class binding at very moderate prices, as well as every description of plain binding, suitable for Lending Libraries, Mechanics' Institutions, Clubs, etc.

LIBRARIES PURCHASED. Executors or Gentlemen having either Libraries or small collections of Books to dispose of, are invited to address themselves to the Advertisers, who are at all times ready to purchase the same on the most liberal terms, and for immediate payment, and to remove them without trouble to the vendor from any part of the kingdom.

LIBRARIES CATALOGUED AND ARRANGED, also valued for Probate, either in Town or Country.
